

Kingston Savings and Loan Public Meeting Was Largely Attended

Interesting Talks, Musical Program and Awarding of Prizes in Contest—Short History of The Association Given.

The public meeting of shareholders of the Kingston Co-operative Savings & Loan Association, and others interested, held in the dining hall at the Governor Clinton Hotel Wednesday evening was an unbounded success, not only as to the attendance, which filled the large hall, but in the character and quality of the program offered.

It was one of the decided triumphs in the 40 years history of this progressive and successful institution and reflected great credit on those who promoted it as well as upon those who participated in the program.

Following the singing of America by all and some songs led by Paul Zucca, President E. Frank Flanagan briefly welcomed the guests of the evening and then turned the further conduct of the meeting over to the efficient secretary of the association, Arthur C. Connelly.

The first number on the program was given by Mrs. Richard J. Cole, formerly Miss Muriel Obenaus, who gave an excellent rendition of two difficult violin solos, accompanied by the piano by Harry P. Dodge. Mrs. Cole played "Kol Nidrei" by Max Bruch and the "Adagio from 'L'Espresso'" by Georges Bizet.

Later in the evening Mrs. Cole was again heard in two very attractive numbers, the "Meditation" from "Thais" by Massenet, and a gypsy number, "Dark Eyes," by Calvin Grooms. She was accompanied in these selections by S. D. Scudder, Jr.

Mr. Connelly gave a short history of the Association, from its organization in February, 1892, to the first meeting and election of officers, being held on February 19 of that year at the office of George C. Preston, Sons, 80 Fair street. Mr. Connelly himself has served the Association as secretary for 40 years. The only surviving past president of the Association, John H. Gregory, was present and was introduced to the audience.

Letters of regret were read from Senator Arthur H. Wicks and Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, who were unable to leave Albany in these closing days of the legislative session. Senator Wicks in his message paid a tribute to the work being done by the Association, whose primary object was, he said, the preservation of the home and he also took occasion to refer to the late E. T. Stelle and the work he had done toward promoting the growth and success of the association.

Judge Fowler Talks

Judge Joseph M. Fowler was next called upon and gave an interesting talk on the work done by the Association, in which he had been a shareholder for nearly 20 years. He, too, referred to the work done by Mr. Stelle and the enthusiasm the latter had displayed in an activity that covered many years, saying that it should be remembered. He discussed briefly the different fields covered by the banks and by the Savings and Loan Association. The latter, said he, performed a great service for the community, in making it possible for persons of limited means to acquire a modest home. He said that those who preach radical and undesirable doctrines are not found among the home owners and he illustrated the point by telling of a personal experience, in which he had witnessed the remarkable change in viewpoint of a man after he had become a home owner and taxpayer.

Following Judge Fowler's address Mr. Connelly introduced and welcomed a number of the officers of the Kingston Home-Seekers Association, including Fred J. Walter, Peter J. Halloran, Judge Stephan and John B. Sterley. He also presented Russell P. Clayton, cashier of the State of New York National Bank and Mr. Remmert, executive vice president of the National Elster County Bank, referring as he did to the friendly relations subsisting between the banks and the Association. He also read letters of regret from Martin Canline of Saugerties and Edward Cockendall of Kingston, who were unable to be present.

The next number on the program was one of the most pleasing features of the evening, a number of vocal selections by the "Trio Original" composed of Mrs. R. R. Gross, Miss Ruth Neal and Mrs. W. E. Tinney. The ladies sang with such pleasing effect that before the audience allowed them to quit they had contributed five different numbers. The selections were all original compositions by Mrs. Gross, who played the piano accompaniment.

Mr. Connelly next introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Homer A. Calver, executive manager of the New York State League of Savings and Loan Associations, saying that his coming down from Albany at this time, during the last week of the legislative session, was especially appreciated.

"The Financial Parade"

Mr. Calver, who took as his topic "The Financial Parade," said in introducing his remarks that the telegram from Senator Wicks was typical of the work he was doing and the understanding he had of the needs and activities of his constituents. He spoke of legislation that would prove harmful to such organizations as the savings and loan association, but said that in most cases it was unintentional and was due to the fact that the legislator introducing the bill did not realize its far-

Assembly Today Approves Bond Issue of $40,000,000 For Relief

Measure Will Be Submitted to the Voters at November Election—Comptroller Issues Warning on Borrowing Too Freely—Raises Relief Funds Since 1931 to $155,000,000—Planned Expenditures Within Next 10 Months Are $210,000,000—Wicks Introduced Measure.

Albany, N. Y., April 19 (AP)—The Assembly today quickly approved a proposal for a $40,000,000 bond issue, which the Senate of the New York legislature passed yesterday. Governor Lehman asked for the bond issue. It will be submitted to the voters at the November election. The issue would raise to $155,000,000 the sum borrowed or appropriated by the state for relief since former Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt instituted the direct relief plan in 1931.

The proposal, instigated by Governor Lehman, came simultaneously with a warning from Comptroller Morris S. Tremaine to avoid any "temptation" to borrow money too freely.

Soon after Senate approval to submit the bond issue at next fall's general election, Assemblyman Irwin Steingut introduced similar bills in the Assembly.

President Roosevelt, while governor in 1931, was the first advocate of giving relief direct to those in need when it was needed most. The plan was opposed in high official circles. Ex-President Hoover called it a dolt.

Since that time the state has borrowed $30,000,000 in two bond is-

Stage Set for K. of C. Charity Ball Friday

Final Arrangements For Social Function Announced as Completed—Prompt Presentation of Program Promised.

Final arrangements for the fifteenth annual charity ball of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knight of Columbus to be held tomorrow evening in the new Kingston Municipal Auditorium, were completed at a meeting of the general committee. Indications point to a record breaking crowd. Persons wishing to avoid a rush at the box office are reminded that tickets now are on sale at the two O'Reilly stores, at 530 Broadway and 38 John street.

General Chairman Walter L. Foster reiterated his determination that every part of the program will be given at the appointed hour. The doors of the big auditorium will open at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening. A concert, interspersed with several novel specialties, will be given for one hour, starting at 8 o'clock. The entertainment, featuring at least five big-time acts, will start at 9 o'clock and end at 10 o'clock. Dancing will begin at the latter hour.

The entertainment will be given on the ballroom floor. A view of the show may be had from every seat in the house, since the committee decided there would be no decorations attached to the riders. In fact, the decorations will be very simple. American flags, in standards, will be set at intervals along each wall and about the stage. K. of C. emblems, placed along the balcony and on each side of the stage, will complete the decorations.

John J. McGuire, chairman of the refreshments committee, moved into the auditorium today and set up the refreshments booth. Mr. McGuire has engaged sufficient help to serve the large crowd speedily.

Miss Theresa Brophy, as in past years, will have charge of the flower and cigar booth.

Workers completed the check-room today. The checking system arranged by James Devine and his committee promises a minimum of confusion and a maximum of speed, with little or no chance of mistakes. Andrew Gilday, secretary of the patron committee, reported that while a number of patrons have made returns, many have not yet done so. At present, returns have not been made for 250 patron tickets. The committee asks that returns be made as soon as possible.

With the stage set for the fifteenth annual ball, the committee hopes that success will crown their efforts to produce an event that will excel any affair of similar character ever held in this city. The character of the entertainment, the arrangements for the comfort and convenience of the spectators and the engagement of two splendid local orchestras no doubt will draw a large crowd to the Municipal Auditorium tomorrow evening.

LOCAL WOMEN WILL BROADCAST FRIDAY

Mrs. Albert Kurdt, wife of the Uter County Farm Bureau manager, and Miss Evelyn Nance, manager of the Home Bureau, will be the air during the Farm and Home Bureau Hour on Station WGY, Schenectady, commencing at 12:34 o'clock that afternoon. The two local women will deliver a dialogue "As the Twig is Bent" and will likely be on the air till about 12:45 o'clock. This will be discussion on children and is one of the series of talks on children being given by

President Roosevelt Is Willing to Talk Debts With British

Little Hope Held For Such a Parley or Any Immediate Successful Settlement—Many Here Feel Debt Talks Would Be Unlikely.

Washington, April 19 (AP)—President Roosevelt is as ready as ever to renew war debt discussions with Great Britain, but a view today from an official quarter held little hope for such a parley or any immediate successful settlement.

Authorities here noted a demand in London for writing down Britain's debt, made by Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal leader, during a debate in the house of commons on the new budget. For the third successive year it omits any provision for debt payment.

It can be stated that Mr. Roosevelt has not altered his policy "that a debtor may at any time approach a creditor with representations concerning the debt and ask for readjustment."

Many here feel, however, that additional debt talks at present would be unlikely.

Mr. Roosevelt himself announced the adjournment of last fall's extended debt meetings in Washington "until certain factors in the world situation—commercial and monetary—become more clarified." More than one official feels this time is not yet.

The chief executive now has under consideration a message to congress on the war debt situation. It is generally expected that he will confine himself to a factual report on the existing status.

Most leaders on Capitol Hill are waiting for Mr. Roosevelt to speak before talking further themselves. An indication of the tenor, however, is contained in a clause approved by the house in passing the reciprocal tariff bill that nothing in it should be interpreted as giving the executive power to cancel debts in negotiating the trade agreements.

In less than two months—June 15—debt installments totaling $174,647,000 are due. Great Britain owes $55,750,765 of this total.

Treasury officials feel certain of collecting only about one-thousandth of the full sum from all debtors. Finland's June 15 installment is $166,538. Finland is the only debtor nation which has paid in full every time and officials look for her to repeat.

That leaves $174,480,000 in the doubtful category. Responsible authorities expect at best only a few million in token payments. The British budget omission of debt payments caused no surprise. In fact President Roosevelt's budget message to congress last January counted on no foreign debt receipts either in the fiscal current year or the next.

Total foreign debt collections in the fiscal year 1933 were $110,000,000. So far in the 1934 fiscal period they have come to about $9,000,000. The funded foreign debt totals $12,352,995,000. The unfunded debt includes Russia's $337,223,000, Armenia's $20,313,000 and $416,559 due from Nicaragua.

Runaway Boy Wanted To Remain in City

Joseph Kolinsky, 16, Who Ran Away From His Home in Passaic, N. J., Told Judge Culliton He Wanted to Stay in City and Get a Job—Advised to Return Home.

Joseph Kolinsky, 16, who ran away from his home in Passaic, N. J., and was picked up here on Sunday, April 15, on a technical charge of disorderly conduct, has been held in the county jail by the local authorities in order to get in touch with the boy's family. Late Wednesday afternoon the police received word from the boy's family that they had no money to come to Kingston after the boy.

This morning the boy was arraigned before Judge Culliton and said he did not desire to return home but wanted to stay in Kingston and get a job. "My advice," said Judge Culliton, "is for you to return home. You found some way of getting to Kingston and ought to be quick-witted enough to find some honest way to get back home. That is where you belong. For that reason I am going to discharge you this morning."

Special Constable Testifies In Trial of Cohen and Rand

George H. Van Aken, Who Was Picked Up Unconscious as The Result of Beating, Tells of Going to Greenfield For The Shot Machines.

There was more or less illustration of the fruits of human memory as the trial of Peter and George Cohen of Ellenville and Moe Rand of Oak Ridge, on an indictment charging assault in the second degree, proceeded in County Court this forenoon before Judge Traver and a jury.

The defendants, who are represented by Daniel H. Prior, well known Albany criminal lawyer, are being tried for alleged participation in an attack on the night of August 11, 1933, on George H. VanAken of Ellenville, at that time a special constable in the town of Wawarsing. Following the attack, which took place around midnight, while Van Aken's car was parked opposite the Chernesky store on South Main street, Ellenville, VanAken was picked up unconscious and later was confined to his home for two weeks as a result of the beating he had received.

District Attorney Clon B. Murray is conducting the prosecution on behalf of the people, assisted by N. LeVan Haven, assistant district attorney.

Van Aken was the first witness to take the stand for the prosecution. He told of going to Greenfield on the night of August 11 to get a slot machine he had been commissioned to seize by Justice John P. Bonomi. He took with him William McNally. He seized a slot machine, which he said was being played, at the Windsor Lake concession. He later seized another machine at Kase's Casino. He returned to Ellenville with the two machines and with Leo Patarsky. He stopped in front of the Chernesky store, telephoned to Justice Bonomi, who was at the Napanoch Country Club, then returned to his car to await the coming of Bonomi. Patarsky was in the front seat with him. McNally and the two machines were in the rear of the car. This was about 11 o'clock. Later, the witness was not certain when, but finally decided it was around 11:45, a car drove up back of him and stopped. He testified that three men got out of the car and came up to him as he sat in his own car.

Van Aken positively identified the men as the three defendants in the present action. He further testified that George Cohen asked, "What have you been up to tonight?" and that he replied that he had been "acting under orders from Judge Bonomi." Van Aken said that one of the men called him a "dirty cur," and that Cohen said, "Take those machines." Van Aken told McNally not to let them take the machines and then got out of his car. Shortly after this he testified that he was jerked back, was struck on the head with some object and remembered nothing more until later when he was picked up and his assailants had gone, taking the machines with them. He testified that he saw one of the defendants, Moe Rand, with a blackjack in his hand.

Van Aken was cross-examined at some length by defense counsel, particularly as to the time of leaving Ellenville, when he returned and the time of the assault. He had no recollection of having told Jack Goldstein or Sam Weisinger, following the assault, that he "didn't know who beat him up." Prior also asked Van Aken about two machines which he had seized at Tamarack Lodge on July 28, and which he testified that he had broken up in Judge Bonomi's office, or in a room adjoining.

Prior asked whether as a matter of fact Van Aken had not told Lewis Gillespie, a constable, that he "got $50 for the two machines," and whether he did not "sell the machines for $50?" Van Aken answered no to both questions.

Later, under objection on the part of Mr. Prior, Van Aken, in reply to a question from District Attorney Murray, swore that he had seen the three defendants in the present case at the time he seized the two machines on July 28 and that at that time Rand had objected to his taking the machines.

Dr. John Weiss of Ellenville, who attended Van Aken at 7 o'clock Saturday morning, following the attack, described his injuries. He said that Van Aken's lips were swollen and bruised, blood was still running from his nose, which was bruised, his left eye was bloodshot and swollen, he had a bruise over his right eye, a swelling and bruise over the top of his forehead, a bump on his head, one tooth was gone and there was a contusion over the right side of the chest.

Morris Levine, Ellenville attorney, who was at the Chernesky home the night of the assault on Van Aken, testified that he and Miss Chernesky, who later became his wife, heard the noise in the street and went out on an upper balcony. He saw several people, one of whom looked like George Cohen. He saw the car that had stopped some distance back of the Van Aken car back away and saw Officer Groppe come up the street and fire at the car.

Edward Mance told of driving up to the scene about 11:50, saw Van Aken and a number of men beating him. He stopped and his wife opened the car door, when Mance testified he saw a gun. He immediately drove on, thinking to go for an officer.

Mr. Mance corroborated her husband's testimony. She saw three or four men beating Van Aken. Neither

Documentary Evidence Is Offered At Loughran Investigation Today

Recess Taken at This Morning's Session in Order That Counsel Might Examine Evidence and Agree on Certain Records Which Might Be Admitted Without Opposition—Two Witnesses Sworn.

Two witnesses were sworn in this morning at the Loughran investigation at the morning session before the Board of Supervisors and then Mr. Ewig began to offer documentary evidence. A recess was taken at 11 o'clock in order that this documentary evidence might be examined by Mr. Flemming and so much of it as can be agreed upon will then be offered without opposition of opposing counsel. This evidence consists largely of certain resolutions and motions contained in the printed proceedings of the board of supervisors for the years 1929, 1932, 1933. As each offer is made opposing counsel must have time to read it in order to enter objections to matters which may seem objectionable.

The members of the board are growing restless and it was suggested that while this slow and tiresome procedure was going on the board might stand at recess. When the board again convenes at 1 o'clock such matter as has been agreed upon as not being objectionable on the part of respondent will be offered without opposition for the record and the remaining evidence will be more speedily presented.

Clarence Hilliker of Turnwood, town of Hardenbergh, was the first witness called. He testified that he had been employed at various times on highway work under the jurisdiction of County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran. In October 1932 he was working on an abutment to a bridge in his town under Warren Holden of Shandaken as foreman. That was presidential election year he said.

"Did you have any banner on your car when you went to the job?" asked Ewig. "Yes, lots of them," replied Hilliker. Mr. Flemming objected to any testimony as to banners on any car. The questions along that line were withdrawn for the moment by Mr. Ewig.

"Did you see Mr. Loughran on the job?" asked Ewig. "Yes," replied the witness, "several times." "Was your car there when he came on one occasion?" asked counsel. "It was," replied the witness. "I saw Mr. Loughran and Mr. Holden together. I believe they were talking," said witness.

Hilliker then said that his car, a Pontiac sport roadster, was there on the job and he had banners on it. The objection to banners was renewed and overruled by a 17 to 15 vote.

Hilliker said he had banners of Roosevelt and Lehman on the car. There were two on the rear and one on front, also pictures. The banner on front said "Roosevelt" and one on the rear said "win with Roosevelt." "What took place between Loughran and Holden?" asked Mr. Ewig. Objected to and overruled by 17 to 15 vote of the board.

"Well, next morning Mr. Holden told me Mr. Loughran asked me—" and at that point an objection was made by Mr. Flemming as to conversation between Holden and Loughran being repeated as not binding on respondent. Overruled by 17 to 15 vote.

Continuing Hilliker said that next morning Mr. Holden told him that Mr. Loughran had asked him what he was doing with a Democrat on a Republican job.

A few days later when they were about to move to a new job Holden told Hilliker that he would like to keep him on the job but he "guessed my politics were not right." The witness said he was let go after working about 102 days.

Cross examined he said he had worked on highways in prior years under Mr. Todd, town superintendent. On the job from which he was dismissed he said he had gone to work when the work started and there was about a day's work to be done when he left. The equipment had to be taken down and moved to another job.

From the bridge job Holden took his men to the covered bridge at Turnwood for two or three days and down to Leach Brook to fix a docking. In 1933 Hilliker said he had worked in a county highway job in Hardenbergh which had been damaged by a flood. He worked about 20 days. That was in September and November, bad weather had caused a lot of work. Mr. Todd, Republican town superintendent of highways, had hired him. Thus far this year there had been no road work in Hardenbergh. The witness said he never worked for the county superintendent on roads outside the town of Hardenbergh. Work in the town was done under the direction of Mr. Todd except the bridge. Mr. Todd never said anything to the witness about his politics. The only political discussion he had was about the decorations on his car in 1932. His was the only car which was decorated on the job. After being let go on the job in 1932 for having banners on his car he said he was again employed for a couple of days by Holden later.

In 1932 supervisors were elected

There was unusually quick action in securing a jury for the trial of the case of The People against Peter and George Cohen of Ellenville and Moe Rand of Oak Ridge now on in county court. Selecting of the jury began at the opening of court at 11 o'clock Wednesday and before court adjourned about five o'clock the jury box had been filled.

The following compose the jury who are trying this town of Wawarsing assault case: Judson Haynes of the Plank Road; Valentine Fustick; Saugerties; Henry M. Cameron; Esopus; George Wood, town of Lloyd; John H. Jansen, Marlborough; Charles A. Ringwald, 22 West O'Reilly street, Kingston; Miles Doyle, Marlborough; Robert Terwilliger, Marlborough; Lewis Roth, Gardiner; Edward N. Snow, 174 Downs street, Kingston; Michael Dowd, Marlborough; and Christian Schleede, 75 Lindale avenue, Kingston.

Jury Selected in Assault Case Here

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

Hanging around the great city day and night, week in and week out, with nothing more outwardly happening than might occur on any Main street, one may get an idea that much of that which has been said or written concerning the life of the unvarying New York may be exaggerated or mere imagination. Possibly anyone who attends to his own business and doesn't take any unnecessary chances is just as safe in the metropolis as in a hamlet. On the other hand, there was that experience of a close friend who just now is convalescing after having been involved in a situation, which arose solely because he had been working too hard and too many hours. Yet he suffered the loss of $15 in cash, both eyes were blacked, his ear and chin were cut, a small bone in his hand was broken, his suit ruined and his hat lost. Yet he was fortunate at that, since he might easily have lost his life.

City-wise is the gentleman involved. He's a resident of New York of a number of years standing. Before moving here, he lived in Chicago and at that time Chicago was far from being a village aroused only by the arrival of No. 7. During the war, he served in the Army Intelligence department and has arrested criminals to whom the taking of life was merely a part of the night's work. Recently, he did some special work for a client which necessitated long and hard hours. In fact, the night before he met his client in a final conference at a hotel near Grand Central, he had not slept at all. Hence when the business finally concluded, he stepped out and hailed a taxicab, he was so weary that he fell asleep very soon after giving the driver his home address.

He was awakened by the driver saying to him, "Here you are." Still deep in the clutches of sleep, he stepped out of the cab and tumbled for his fare. As he did so, the cab darted away and three gorillas set on him. He tried to fight but the odds were too great. Finally he was knocked down, kicked and robbed. As he was losing consciousness, he sensed that he was being tossed into a snow bank. As it was a bitter cold night, he would have frozen to death had not a passerby discovered him and summoned a policeman. So he was revived in a mid-town police station and taken home in a police ambulance. The taxi driver, according to the police, figured that he was

Stomach, Gas

A DISEASE which starts with indigestion, gassy, sour stomach, dizzy spells or general lassitude may be helped by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Thin blood and a run-down system also respond quickly. Mr. A. E. Smith of 45-46 St. Trov, N. Y., said: "A few years ago my stomach was causing me quite a bit of trouble. I would become bloated with gas, never felt like eating, and there were days that I felt more dead than alive. I was nervous and sleepless. I used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it certainly straightened me up in great shape. It drove away the stomach complaint entirely. I slept fine at night and felt 100% in every way. New size, tablets, 50c; liquid, $1.00. Large size, tabs. or liquid, $1.35. 'We Do Our Part'."

drunk and had delivered him to a confederate. When he is able to ride in taxis again, he intends to write the number of the vehicle and the name of the driver on his coat.

Another instance that has the head of the sidewalks of New York offer no danger, involved two young men who acted as good Samaritans. One was at a party where a guest became too friendly with a woman on which the government placed a heavy tax. The Good Samaritan offered to take him home. The intoxicated one insisted that the car be stopped a half block or so from the place where he lived so that his wife would not hear it. The Good Samaritan, being married himself, agreed that that was a good idea. He led his staggering companion home, delivered him and stepped outside. As he did so, something struck him on the top of the head. Not only was he robbed, even to his shoes, but at a hospital it was discovered his skull had been fractured.

The other Good Samaritan helped a young woman, who said she had been taken ill suddenly, into her home. Hardly were they inside when a man, who said he was her husband, arrived and caused a scene. After many threats, he proposed a cash settlement. The good Samaritan didn't pay. Knowing he was up against the old badger game, which might cause him no little trouble, he retained an expensive lawyer who finally brought the blackmailers to time. But his fee was heavy. And with such things in mind, the original idea changes to one that in rambling about New York a certain amount of care and discretion is necessary.

Even If It Hurts Better Add "Nerts"

Chicago.—Take it from Sir William Craigie, University of Chicago professor, and one of the world's foremost dictionary makers, slang is the stuff. "It's up to you" to "believe it or not," he says, and these two expressions are real contributions to the language which convey exactly what they mean. You may be "small potatoes," or able to toss the "bunk," but just as long as you earn the "nimble-ones" to get a "square meal" you can usually get out of a "tight place," and other such expressions are approved by the professor. Six words are most commonly used, Sir William says, and they are: "A," "an," "the" and "to be."

Rove Beetles

Rove beetles are very common about decaying animal matter, and are often found upon the ground under stones or other objects. They are mostly very small insects; a few species, however, measure half an inch or more in length. The body is long and slender, with short wing covers. The wings are fully developed, often longer than the abdomen. When not in use, the wings are folded beneath the short wing covers. The insect when it folds its wings very often folds it necessary to make use of the tip of the abdomen, or one of its legs, to assist in folding the wings beneath the wing covers. These beetles run very swiftly and have the curious habit of raising the tip of the abdomen in a threatening manner when disturbed. The larvae of these beetles resemble the adults in the form of their bodies, and are found in similar situations. About one thousand species of Rove Beetles have been described in North America.

Special Constable Testifies At Trial

Lyle Startup, who had called for his wife at the telephone building at midnight, told of seeing a car come out of Essex street and go down Market street, as he was on his way home. He would not say that he recognized any of the men in the car positively, but that one of them resembled Peter Cohen.

Mrs. Morris Levine told of coming out on the balcony of the Chertsey home after hearing loud voices. She saw Vanaken on the ground back of his car, and saw men kicking him. She was questioned at length as to whether she had not recognized one of the men in the party as George Cohen. Mr. Haver, who was conducting the examination, tried in vain to get into the evidence more positive statements which it was suggested the witness had made when testifying before the grand jury. Witness was allowed to read a transcript of the testimony she had given before the grand jury. Attorney Prior constantly objected, but she still maintained that she couldn't "be certain" at this time as to whether she had recognized any of the men.

Court adjourned at 12:30 for the noon recess.

Use of Tobacco Defended, Condemned for 450 Years

The use of tobacco has been condemned and defended for the entire span of the 450 years since its adoption by the European nations. But tobacco traces its ancestry back to 3000 B. C. when the Egyptians burned sweet herbs in their temples. The Romans and Greeks also followed this custom, and the former initiated the practice of burning medicinal herbs. In America, says a writer in the Washington Post, the Mexican Maya tribes, which flourished from the Fourth to Seventh centuries A. D., also burned herbs in ritual—a practice so common among all the peoples of the New world that a thousand years later the popes of Rome issued bulls forbidding smoking in church on the grounds that it was a pagan rite.

The real red-letter day of tobacco history was that on which Columbus discovered the Antilles and saw the natives smoking. However, it was not until five years later—in 1497—that one Romano Pane brought the first account of smoking to Europe. In 1512 Oriedo brought specimens of the tobacco plant to Portugal, where, strangely enough, it was regarded as merely a kind of potted blossom of no practical value. In 1550 Jean Nicot, French ambassador to Portugal, discovered that the leaves had some curative qualities and introduced them into France.

Playing Cards European; Known in 14th Century

Cards were not introduced by the Saracens, or from the East, but were of indigenous European origin, and are first mentioned, although probably known previously, at the very end of the Fourteenth century, says the Boston Herald.

The earliest marks for the suits were cups, money, swords and clubs, supposed to represent faith, charity, justice and fortitude, or more probably meaning nothing at all, but taken accidentally from objects of common occurrence.

The Germans used hearts, bells, leaves and acorns. It was the French who introduced what we call spades, hearts, clubs and diamonds. The spade on cards owes its shape to one source and its name to another. It appears that it is the leaf of the German marks, to which the French gave the name of pique, from its resemblance to the head of a pike. In England the symbol survived, but the name is the Italian denomination for their corresponding suit of swords.

The English club is in shape nearly the German acorn, but retains the Italian name, which actually agrees with the symbol of a club upon their cards. Hearts descended from the old cups, and diamonds from the ancient pieces of money.

Handel's "Messiah"

According to a book entitled "George Frederic Handel," by Newman Flower, "The Messiah" was written in London and fled away by Handel, who had no idea of producing it when he wrote it, due to the fact that he was so discouraged over the reception given him in London and the indifference displayed for his compositions, that he had about made up his mind to return to Germany when he received a pressing invitation to go to Dublin and there produce some of his other compositions. Whether it was because the Irish are a music-loving people, or that the type of religious music for which Handel was noted appealed strongly to them, is not known, but he achieved tremendous success in Dublin. With persuasion, he was induced to produce "The Messiah." Of all of his compositions given in Dublin, "The Messiah" achieved the greatest fame and Handel's success from then on was assured.

When It Comes to Fabrics

New York. Man-made fabrics are much in vogue this season. The term is used to designate such materials as are neither wool, cotton nor silk. The man-made fabrics may be said to have improved on nature. Anyway they have rejected new life in the fabric situation and contributed much interest in materials that are difficult to classify though none worse for being of decidedly mixed ancestry.

It is a fact that for washable materials. Women have wisely decided to dress in cool cottons and linens in such as well as out.

Stylish dark in color are used extensively for these ensembles. There are as usual many attractive prints, those on dark grounds starting the season. But there will be, I am sure, many plain crepes, cuffs, bibs and all the rest of the attractive accessories that have fallen to our lot.

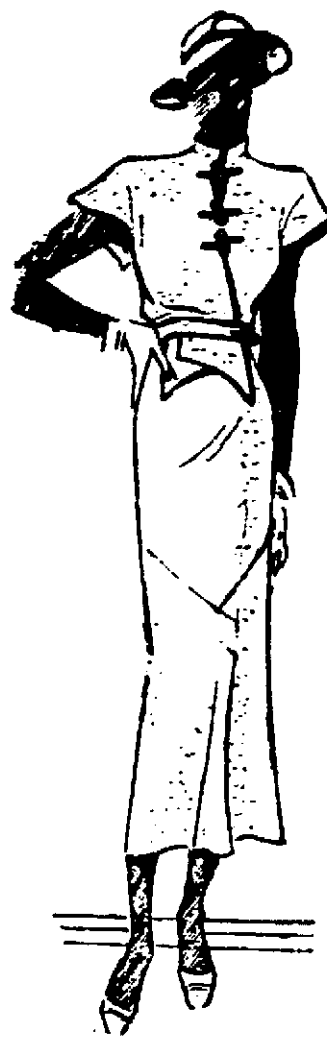

One thing that is striking about the model sketched is the rather curious combination of standing collar and no sleeves. Also a standing collar on a cotton dress is a bit unusual or has been, until this season.

Cottons, generally figured, are one of the preferences of the younger who are literally all of a flutter. Bell and carnation silhouettes are the types the young things want. Women too, are going in for ruffles even while preferring rather mannish dresses for general wear.

This Will Be the Bracelet Sleeve

Paris underscores the fashion of short sleeved coats by adding a band of fur at the edge of the abbreviated sleeve. And in some of the newest imports, with Vionnet's ringleader in the idea, the abbreviated sleeve means something just a shade below the elbow; this, in full length coats decidedly for wear with sleeved frocks in the daytime, or informal frocks for dinner wear. The idea is to depend on the sleeve of the frock to actually finish on the design.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Brown, navy and black are the favorites in daytime fashions shown in window displays with pastels and black approved for evening. Brown is definitely in the picture, in monochromes and also in prints.

The 18th Century as a source of inspiration for 1934 millinery is cited by Madame Agnes, who is working on several different types of hats suggested by this period.

Crinkled organdies provide the most interesting fabric or "weave" news of the season.

OUR DAILY PATTERN

Neat and Clever House Frock 8174. For slimming effect, for neatness, for a general air of jaunty efficiency, choose this frock. The little bows under the front band and under the sleeve bands have a charmingly gay effect, without being too much trimming. The skirt with roke and seam center front and back is just one of those skirts that always fit and still gives plenty of room for moving about.

Plaid or checked gingham is suggested or striped percale. There are many new and various printed cottons on the market which would work up effectively in blue or red with white revers and little bows. The bands could be made with a bias cut if plaid is used.

Designed in sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 34 requires 3 1/2 yards of 35 inch material with 1-2 yard contrasting.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

SCOUTS OF TROOP 12 ENJOYED INTERESTING HIKE SUNDAY

The Scouts of Troop 12 took part in an interesting objective hike on Sunday, April 15, under the supervision of their scoutmasters. A group of leaders left at one o'clock and laid four trails in code starting at the Bethany Chapel and crossing the foothills by way of the Callis Hill fire tower to Stony Hollow. The main party, divided in four patrols started a half hour later and raced to Stony Hollow. The Fox patrol coming in first. After all the patrols had arrived at their destination several games were played and supper was started. While the older scouts were cooking supper, the younger scouts passed such tests as cooking, fire building, and tracking. The party started for home at seven o'clock and arrived there after an hour and a half of brisk walking.

Aesop of Fables Fame

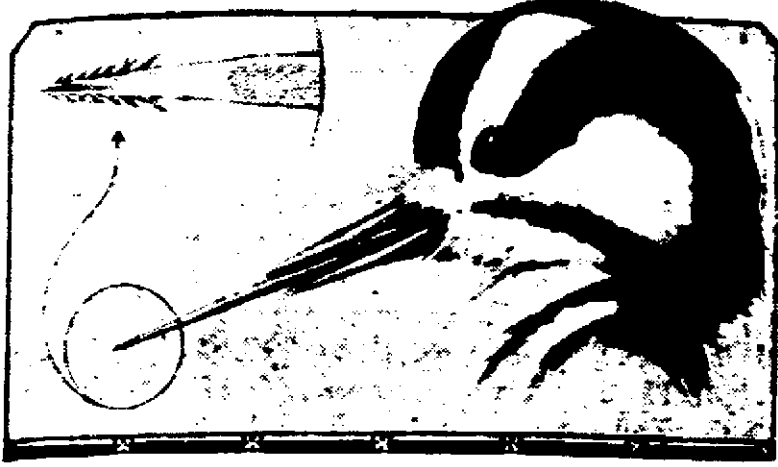

According to tradition, Aesop of the Sixth century B. C. represented as a dwarf and originally a slave. Samos and other places claimed the honor of being his birthplace. After obtaining his freedom he visited Lydia and Greece. Of the so-called fables of Aesop there have been several editions. Some of those attributed to him are drawn from Egyptian sources older by 800 years than Aesop.

Busy Woodpeckers

A Woodpecker's Tongue is a Coiled Spring.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNC Service.

SCIENTISTS have recently discovered in the dark, rain-creaked forests of Haiti a species of woodpecker which builds its own apartment house. They reported seeing a dozen pairs of woodpeckers going in and out of nests in a single dead tree trunk.

There are few birds that so satisfactorily reveal their family connection as do the woodpecker. The beginner in bird study may learn that the meadowlark belongs to the family "Icteridae" but he may be excused if he does not learn at once that the bobolink, the oriole, and the red-winged blackbird, all strikingly different in habits and color, belong to the same family. He may study the wood thrush, and be surprised to find later that the robin and the bluebird bear to it a close family relationship. But if he becomes thoroughly familiar with the appearance and activities of just one woodpecker, he will thereafter be able to recognize at once any other member of the family "Picidae" which he may encounter.

Woodpeckers are of wide distribution. They inhabit all the countries of the globe except Madagascar and the Australian region. More than four hundred species are known, and many geographical races of these have been described.

In North America the family is represented by ten genera, classified into 22 species, several of which in turn are divided into subspecies or geographical races. In all 64 kinds of woodpeckers are recognized in continental United States, Canada and Baja California.

Sensible and Busy Birds.

Woodpeckers give the impression of being practical, sensible birds. Under ordinary circumstances, they do not show a hysterical fear of man; they are wary, but do not let that interfere with their work. They are very busy birds and most of the time are absorbed in climbing about tree trunks and limbs. They get along together fairly well. One sees few serious combats among them.

They do not possess the stately dignity of the heron, the singing powers of the thrush, or the graceful flight of the swallow. Woodpeckers do not stir the imagination to thoughts of distant lands, as does the wild goose when far overland we see him leading his flock toward the frozen pole. The woodpeckers are known rather as hard-working, substantial citizens of the bird world, rendering service which could ill be spared.

These birds possess highly specialized equipment for their business of getting a living. They are the only birds in our country that can dig holes in solid trees. As a group they pass most of their days pecking decayed trees or stumps for ants or the larvae of wood-boring beetles.

No other bird leaves behind such striking evidence of its presence. A hundred thousand warblers may migrate through a small region, and many may remain for the summer and rear their young. When they have gone, little sign of their former presence is left behind; but a half dozen woodpeckers in the same community will leave very definite evidence of their occupancy. Numerous holes in dead trees, with here and there an entrance to a nesting cavity, will all bear convincing testimony that these birds have been in the forests and the orchards of the neighborhood.

Woodpeckers nest in hollows which they dig in trees, and all of them lay white eggs on a bed of fine chips at the bottom of the cavity.

Their toes usually number four, two of them pointing forward and the others backward. This arrangement enables the birds to grasp firmly the side of a tree, and especially in this the case when they brace themselves with their twelve long, stiff tail feathers.

One Kind Goes After Sap.

The sapsucker, (a species of woodpecker), is looked upon with serious disfavor by foresters and orchardists, some variety of it being found in nearly every part of the country. This dislike arises from its universal custom of pecking holes in live trees. The bird does this chiefly to get the sap which flows upward through the soft cambium, lying just beneath the bark, or inner bark, and it also eats the cambium and bark. To get this food the sapsucker drills holes in rings around the tree, or, at times, in rows on the trunk, or along a limb.

As the sap collects in the openings, it is consumed by the bird until the little springs begin to fail, when another series of holes is made near the first one. Thus the work continues, until large areas of the tree may be covered with these perforations.

The sapsucker will take the sap of maple, mountain ash, pear, plum, apple, cherry, oak, peach, spruce, and ironwood trees, and of almost all species of pines, fir, hemlocks, cedars, cypresses or cottonwoods.

In the northern forests, where many sapsuckers spend the summer, numerous birch trees are killed annually by them. In the Northwest, where at times sapsuckers are usually plentiful, whole apple orchards have been destroyed.

In some trees, such as maples, walnuts, and hickories, their holes often pierce the sap wood beneath the cambium. In the subsequent growth of the trees, these wounds sometimes cause curly or bird-eye wood well known to lumbermen. More often, however, this exposure of the wood allows insects, fungi, or bacteria to enter. These cause blight or decayed areas, which reduce in value the lumber which later may be cut from the tree.

About the rings of holes made by these birds in locusts and sycamores, shoots often sprout from adventitious buds, and thus the symmetry of the tree is marred. Not only are hundreds of thousands of trees injured by sapsuckers, but a considerable proportion of those that are attacked die either the same year or subsequently.

The woodpeckers do not confine their attentions wholly to trees. They make their explorations for sap through the bark of various large vines, such, for example, as the Virginia creeper, poison ivy, rattan, and trumpet creeper.

Close about the nesting tree of the sapsucker there are various trees where the old birds go for their sap, and where they take their young when they leave the nest. Here the family spends the summer with an abundance of normal food supply at hand. At this season they eat also ants, flies, beetles, and various other insects which are drawn to the flowing springs of sweet sap. Other woodpeckers come to these little fountains, as well as humming birds, warblers, and at times red squirrels.

Flicker is the Best Known. Among the woodpeckers the flicker is a bird of distinctive personality, and it attracts universal attention. Undoubtedly it is known to far more people than are the other woodpeckers. Its local names are numerous: "Wilkrissen," "yucker bird," "golden-winged woodpecker," "high-holder," "pigeon woodpecker," and "yellow-hammer" are some of them.

Of late years the custom has developed of adopting a "state bird." Already choice has been made by the organizations of 45 states, and in Alabama, not long ago, the question of which bird should be chosen created hot discussion. In the end the "yellow-hammer" was decided upon. The fight for its name was led by a woman's patriotic organization, members of which called attention to the historic fact that a company of Alabama youths had placed the bird's feathers in their caps and, designating themselves "yellow-hammers," had marched away, singing, to the Civil war.

The red-headed woodpeckers and others of the family will now and then dart down to a road or to the lawn to capture an insect, or to pick up an acorn, but when the flicker drops to the ground he remains there for some time, often until frightened away. In the woods, the field, or the garden, one may come upon him hopping awkwardly through the grass.

His chief interest at such times is ants, which constitute 50 per cent of his food. He secures them by use of his remarkable tongue, which can be thrust outward two and a half inches or more beyond the end of the bill. His tongue is at all times covered with a sticky saliva, which catches and holds the ants as they push forward to attack what appears to be a long worm that has crawled across their path or entered their burrow.

This tongue is a very wonderful organ. In the mouth it branches, and the two halves pass up the rear of the skull. On top they meet, and close together the two parts run forward and downward over the right eye to the nostril, which they enter, and extend outward to the end of the bill.

How They Feed Their Young.

Like other woodpeckers, these birds feed their young by regurgitation. When the little ones are old enough to come to the mouth of the nesting hole to be fed, this operation may often be observed. The parent puts its bill into the mouth of a nestling, and repeatedly stabs downward in a most alarming manner.

Some flickers have the curious habit of continuing to lay an egg daily if, before the clutch is completed, all the eggs except one are taken. Being careful always to leave one nest egg, Joseph Audubon, of Greensboro, N. C., was the cause of one of these birds laying 32 eggs in 33 days. Ordinarily, a flicker lays four or five eggs.

Calling V. Profession

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH
The favorite teacher among the boys and girls of a certain high school was Miss Hodson. She was neither very young nor very pretty, and however much she had studied the principles of pedagogy and psychology, she gave the impression of being unaware of the existence of these two new arrivals in the nursery of science.

Miss Hodson, however, had some outstanding characteristics which made her invaluable as a teacher.

In the first place she knew instinctively the ins and outs of a child's mind. She could sense his difficulties, and was willing and able to explain what seemed plain to her but incomprehensible to the pupil.

In the second place, children were to her individuals, to be dealt with, not by rule of thumb, or theory, but according to their separate needs. She never generalized or classified, but studied every case on its own merits or demerits.

Moreover, she knew her subjects and was keenly interested in them, Latin, English, history, even in their driest aspects, were living things to her. She always came to class brimming over with new thoughts, new points of view, and by her own enthusiasm fired the class to discussion and special research.

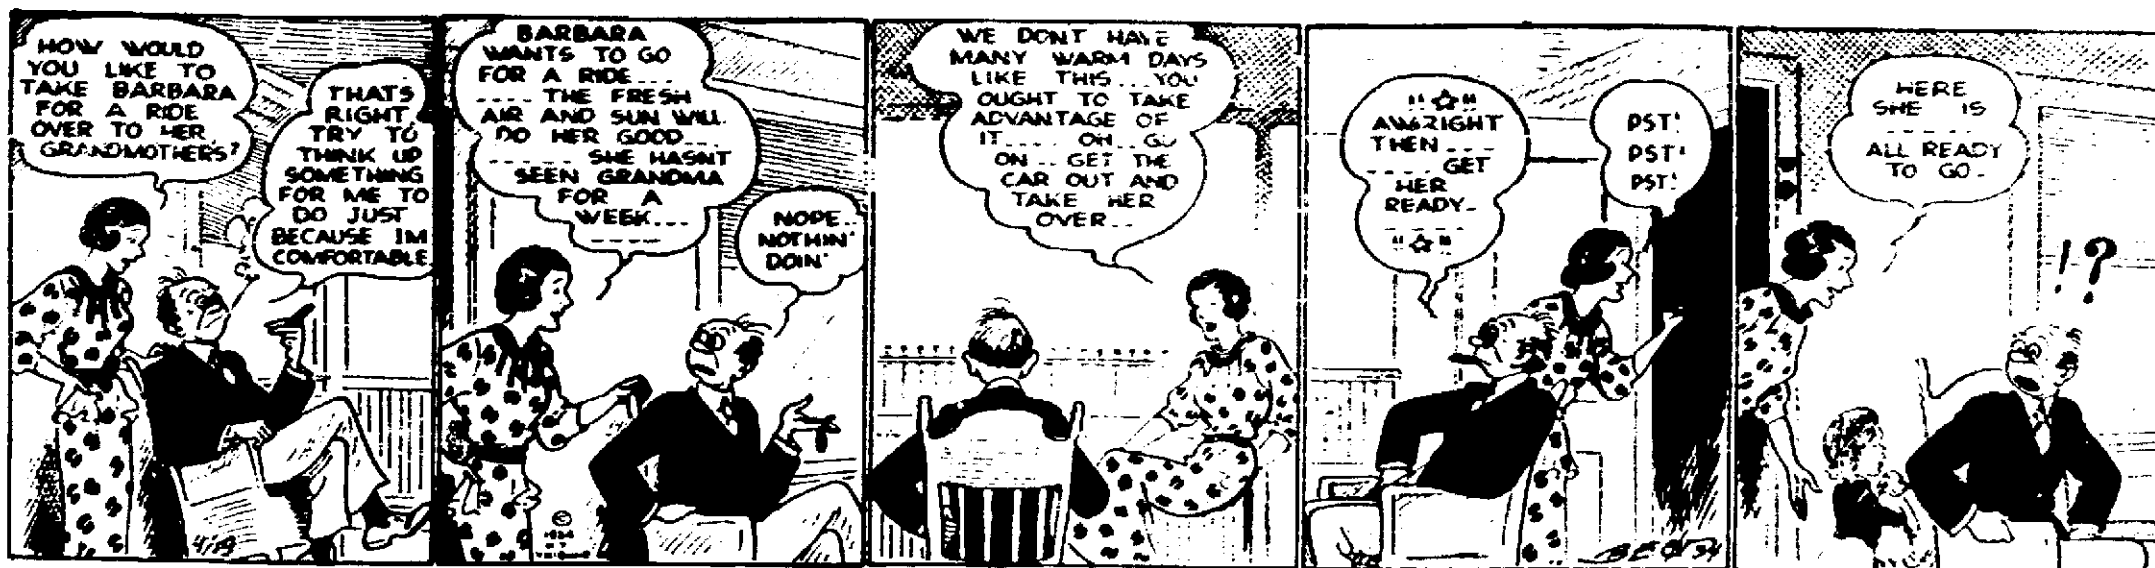

Last, but not least, she loved teaching. To her, her occupation was a calling, not a profession, and she considered it a privilege rather than a duty to guide the children entrusted to her. Her work was not a stop-gap to fill the years before marriage, nor a refuge from more competitive fields.

To encourage the inspired members of the profession should be the aim of parents who wish to make learning pleasurable to the young.

Flight of the Albatross

The albatross, notable for its smooth, gliding flight with almost motionless wings for long distances requires a fairly strong wind for such a performance. When the wind drops it begins to flap its wings much more frequently and is often left behind by a steamer.

English People Greatest Dog Lovers in World

It is generally accepted that the English are the greatest nation of dog lovers on earth.

One of the strongest proofs of this lies in the fact that in almost all of the paintings of rulers and great men of bygone times a dog is depicted somewhere.

In practically all the paintings of King Charles I a King Charles spaniel is found. Who has not heard of the devotion of a greyhound to King Richard II? Mary Queen of Scots is shown in a picture with a Skye terrier. This terrier was missing on the morning of Mary's execution, and when the blood-stained body was taken up, the animal was found crouching beneath her robes. He "could not be gotten forth but with force, and afterwards would not depart from the corpse, but came and laid between her head and shoulders." A lady took charge of him, but the poor thing refused all further connection with human beings and pined away.

Very similar was the action of the Pekingese which stood over the bodies of the czar of Russia and his family and defied the assassins until a bullet settled his defiance forever. A pug once saved the prince of Orange by giving warning of the approach of a raiding party. The prince always had a pug of some sort or other so long as he lived.—American Kennel Gazette.

"What It Really Is Like" in San Juan

WHEN Mrs. Roosevelt was inspecting living conditions in San Juan, Puerto Rico, she asked the camera man to make this picture "to show really what it is like." She is standing at the edge of a pool of dirty water swarming with flies in the center of La Perla, one of the slum streets.

Air Packets

Aviators say there are no air packets. Air may be compared with water, and updrafts and downdrafts of air are encountered just as are waves at sea.

Cellulose in Cotton Stalks

Cellulose in cotton stalks and cuspids (the husk of the cotton seed) is identical in unit cell structure with that of the fiber, chemists report to the American Chemical Society.

WASHINGTON HEADLINERS

No. 10—Ickes: "I Hate To See The Under-Dog Get a Dirty Deal"

This is the tenth article in a series sketching the personalities behind Washington "big names."

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE.

Washington (AP)—It was March 3, 1933, the Republican administration's "moving out day" in Washington.

A mild, patient-looking man with glasses, humorous eyes behind large spectacles was one of a crowd awaiting entrance to the impressive mahogany-trimmed office of Secretary Wilbur of the interior department.

The man unostentatiously stepped up to a suave office attendant and whispered:

My name is Ickes, Harold L. I want to say howdy, not good-bye, to Mr. Wilbur. Suppose I slip into this ante-room until the rush is over."

Thus the cabinet debut of the man who today is secretary of the interior, administrator of the vast petroleum industry, director of the largest public works project in the history of the nation and regarded by political observers as one of the "strong men" of the Roosevelt regime.

No "Whizzers."

Sitting long hours at a broad desk in the big room which overlooks the distant Potomac, Ickes still has that patient look in his eyes except when he thinks someone is trying to "pull a whizzer" on him or the government.

Then the jaws take on a granite cast, the milk blue eyes become somewhat steely and there are close-lipped utterances of unvarnished language. Lobbyists and sharp-dealers are his particular nuisances. Ickes, who has had to say "no" to many applicants for PWA funds and favors, has said the word a great many times in his 36 years of fighting "the bosses" and crusading for political reform. At the Republican national convention of 1920 he was one of a handful of delegates who voted no when the assembly was asked to make unanimous the nomination of Warren Harding for the presidency.

When the Insull interests sought to make peace with him four years ago, his answer was a loud "no" that reverberated through Cook county and Illinois, although he was advised it meant political suicide for him. When his political battles in Chicago became disheartening he turned to his flower garden for restoration of spirit.

Part-Time Gardener.

Five acres of blossoms make his home in Winnetka, north suburb of Chicago, one of the flower gardens of the country. He is a specialist in dahlia growing, has originated several varieties and named one the Anna W. Ickes in honor of his wife. Advised by his physician to give up tennis as too strenuous, he turns to garden work in season.

In his office here Ickes works with his sleeves rolled up, has a glass of milk and a sandwich brought in for lunch and often returns after dinner to remain on the job until 11 o'clock or later. At 60 he does not seem to feel the strain of responsibility as director of three big governmental enterprises.

Long an avowed champion of the under-dog, he shares with Mrs. Ickes, who is a Republican member of the Illinois state legislature, an interest in the problems of the American Indian. They have a home in what sounds like a Republican stronghold. Goodidge, McKinley county, New Mexico.

Befriended "Under-Dog."

No campus playboy was Harold Ickes when he attended the University of Chicago. He was a senior when he took part in his first political campaign in the spring of 1897. Chicago was tremendously stirred and so was Harold over a public utility question. He dropped his academic pursuits and reported at the headquarters of the independent Republican candidate for mayor, John Maynard Harlan, son of the late supreme court justice, John Marshall Harlan.

Influenced by his son, Raymond, Secretary Ickes became interested several years ago in stamp collecting and has added many valuable specimens to the former's collection. He summarizes his political philosophy in one short sentence:

"I hate to see the under-dog get a dirty deal."

Next—Attorney General Cummings.

Ceramics Experts Seek Chinese Pottery Secrets

Ames has concerned itself with efforts to rediscover knowledge of pottery making which was employed by the Chinese as early as 800 A. D.

Antique Chinese pottery produced, according to Edmund F. Curtis, industrial arts instructor in the Pennsylvania museum, articles of such beauty in line, shape and color that surface decorations were unnecessary.

Curtis spoke before the American Ceramic society here.

Skill of the Chinese in attaining new color effects reached its greatest accomplishment in production of pottery of sang de boeur, or blood, color. This shade was produced by the Lang brothers, and their pottery, of which only a few examples are extant in this country, is known as Langao. New York's Metropolitan museum possesses one of the pieces.

Potters all over the world have sought to reproduce the Lange shade, Curtis said, and have succeeded. Among those who have produced it are Curtis, Charles Harder, ceramics department, Alfred university, Alfred, N. Y.; Herman Meyer, a German; Theodore Deck, a Frenchman; Bernard Moore, an Englishman, and the Rockwood pottery, Cincinnati.

In making the Langao, clay is used which contains a small percentage of copper oxide. The article is fashioned, glazed, then fired in a temperature of about 2,300 degrees Fahrenheit under special atmospheric con-

Here you see Jordan, and some of the legends in all the glory of the past and mixed with modern of London and are fascinated with some. Since changed, the most realistic of growth and of towering polytechnic. It was one of Henry's whimsicalities that he had him to borrow these famous names of all the Essex stables and the adjacent manion. Little did he realize, however, that at the same time he was providing the English speaking races with that expressive phrase "Go to Jericho". For so boring was the work for his country in this lonely retreat —Heavily demanding their presence but rarely giving them anything to do—that when one member of the court wanted to be rude to another he would exclaim: "Oh, go to Jericho!"

the prefix "ex-" means out, out of, on, beyond," says Literary Digest. Prefixed to a word denoting office or condition, it means one who formerly occupied the position: as ex-President, ex-convict. It is improperly prefixed to any geographical division, but properly to an office or position. The expression "ex-Chicago Mayor" would indicating illiteracy on the part of the person who used it. "The ex-blazer of Chicago" is correct. In describing a person who formerly occupied the office of district attorney, it would be awkward to say, "The ex-attorney."

awkward to say "ex-District Attorney of Cleveland," for the reason that it might be misread as the attorney from the ex-district of Cleveland. Hence, although cumbersome, it should read, "the former District Attorney of Cleveland."

OPPORTUNITY

Spring's In The Air—And It's Running Rampant—Looking For You!

EVERYBODY, the cop on the beat and the boss in his limousine, feels an urge in every zephyr. The maid wants to get married, the youngsters want to sign up for summer camp; you cast a doleful eye on the old bus and everybody agrees it's time to find a new place to live or completely disguise the present camping ground.

Time was when spring yearnings were suffered in silence. Time was when a dose of sulphur and molasses was always at hand for those who gave voice to their discontent. But today, it's a different story. Opportunity is as close to you as your telephone.

Whatever your wants may be, you'll find satisfaction waiting for you in the classified columns.

Lost and FOUND!

They read the "For Sale" columns. And be it ever so humble or ever so huge, they find it!

Babe Ruth And Jimmie Foxx Off In Race For Home Run Throne

By HUGH ...
When the season opens, the race for the home run throne will be a close one. Babe Ruth and Jimmie Foxx are the favorites to win it. Ruth has led the league in home runs for the last two years, while Foxx has been second. Both players are expected to have a big season this year.

A Bunch of Homers
Foxx, the Boston Red Sox slugger, has been hitting home runs at a rapid rate. He has already hit four in the last week. Ruth, the New York Yankees slugger, has also been hitting home runs at a rapid rate. He has already hit three in the last week.

Dean Easy for Pirates
Medwick also came out on the losing side when Pittsburgh's Pirates found young Paul Dean easier than brother Jerome Hornum and been the day before and belted out a 7 to 6 victory. Gus Suhr, Pie Traynor and rookie Harry Lavagetto hit a homer apiece, the trio accounting for all but one Pirate run.

The First Shutout
Irvin (Bump) Hadley of the St. Louis Cardinals pitched a shutout against the New York Yankees.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The season of 1930 brought three great two-year-olds to the horse races. The greatest as a three-year-old was Twenty Grand, now retired. The other two, A. C. Bostwick's Mate and C. V. Whitney's renowned Equipoise, will campaign as six-year-olds this year on opposite sides of the ocean. Mate on the British turf and "Ekkie" in a come-back to the American tracks.

Longevity Of Thoroughbreds
Mate and Equipoise still have a long way to go before they really menace the all-time money-winning record of the great Kilmer horse, Sun Beau, which was retired as a six-year-old with $140,744 to his credit. They are the only thoroughbreds in training, however, with a chance to do anything about it.

Other Elderly Earners
Mike Hall was seven years old when this great gelding beat Sun Beau in the $100,000 Santa Catalina Handicap in record time in 1931. Two of the greatest records for favorite, seat time, speed, and combined endurance and class were created in or White Horse Kilmer's Estermination, popularly known as "Old Bones," and Displacement, the "Iron money" winner four years in a row of $200,000.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 19 (AP)—Frank X. Shields and Lester R. Stoefer, towering tennis players who are generally regarded as certain to be America's singles representatives in the forthcoming Davis Cup matches, drew closer to the clashing point today as quarter-final matches in the 14th Mason and Dixon Tournament got underway.

Emerick Youngsters Defeat Immanuels
In a special bowling match at Emerick's alleys, the pin boys of that place scored a 149-point decision over the Immanuel pin boys Wednesday evening. North turning the highest single and Crispell the best average as shown by the following list of individual scores:

Immanuel Pin Boys	W	L	Pct.
Saehloff	159	140	156-485
Nickerson	149	145	163-467
Buddenhagen	145	122	162-419
Total	453	407	471-1331
Emerick Pin Boys	W	L	Pct.
Crispell	150	140	122-522
North	128	203	124-456
Saunders	170	192	131-498
Total	448	535	447-1480
High single scorer—North, 203.
High average scorer—Crispell, 177.
High game—Emerick, 555.

On Track Team
John J. Mikesh, of 17 Augusta street, and Michael G. Tutsura, Ulster Park, are members of the track team at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy. Mr. Mikesh is affiliated with Phi Kappa Fraternity. He is a junior in the civil engineering department. Mr. Tutsura is a member of the newly formed Gymnastic Club at Rensselaer, and is enrolled in the chemical engineering course, Class of 1936.

When the first explorers came to the lower Mississippi river valley they found the aborigines skillfully growing maize, beans, potatoes, artichokes, squash, peanuts, tobacco and cabbage.

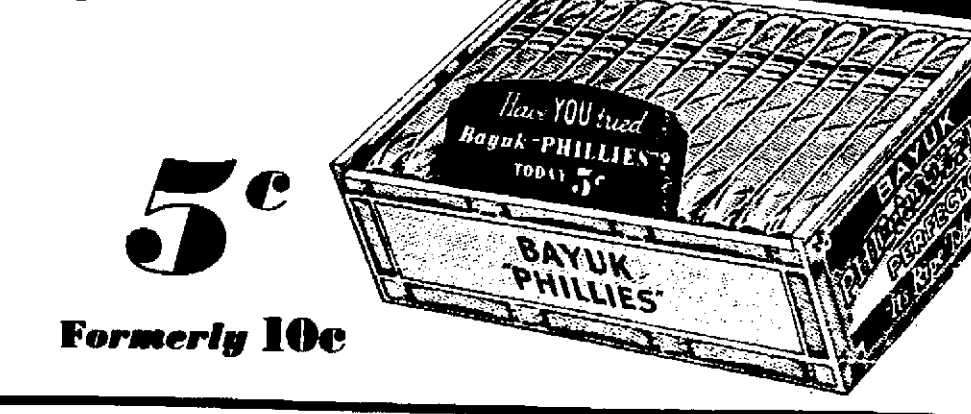

BEFORE YOU PAY 5¢ FOR ANY CIGAR

... ask yourself these questions

Is it just a regular 5c cigar—with the same quality of tobacco as in previous years?
Is it a former 10c cigar reduced in size or quality to sell for 5c?
If it's Bayuk "Phillies"—the answer is NO... Bayuk "Phillies" is not a regular 5c cigar. Neither is it a former ordinary 10c cigar now made to sell for 5c.

Bayuk "Phillies" is a guaranteed 10c value for 5c... the SAME cigar in quality, size and shape as when it outsold every other 10c brand in America.
The first "Phillies" you smoke will show you why more millions of men prefer it to any other cigar—regardless of price.
Look for the box of "Phillies" on your dealer's counter—and read Bayuk's Guarantee in the blue strip on the lid.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

When the world's greatest show business city is in the mood to play, it has a way of making its own special kind of magic. It is a magic that is not of the fairy tale variety, but of the real, tangible variety. It is a magic that is born of the imagination and the desire to create a world of fantasy and excitement. It is a magic that is the result of the hard work and dedication of the people who live and work in Hollywood. It is a magic that is the lifeblood of the entertainment industry.

Starting Things Humming

But when De Mille reaches into Roman and Egyptian history for his spectacles, as for "Cleopatra," things really start humming in the old building far to the rear of the lot.

Von Sternberg's statues are an old story now, anyway. They're stored off in a corner, along with the huge paper-mache toadstool from "Alice in Wonderland" and the sad fragment of Caterpillar and Sparks' tail. They represent a finished picture, forgotten here at least before its release. The department is through with it.

"Cleopatra," however, is new. There must be made gigantic columns, huge decorative figures—eagles, asp, mystic symbols—throne and chariot ornaments. The air is filled with plaster dust, and the fires roar, and the modelers in clay slap fresh wet clods vigorously on the rough framework of their subjects.

'Antiquing' The Stone

In another room the painters work, transforming molded white plaster into "ancient stone" or "gleaming metal" by the painstaking application of selected tints. A few labor at the delicate task of applying gold leaf to ornamental designs.

On a shelf, dusty and neglected with other odd pieces, stand plaster busts of several familiar figures—relics of forgotten pictures. Here is one of a glowering William Powell, beside it a grim Wallace Beery, and further, a malignant Eric von Stroheim. In time, no doubt, the new cast of Warren William as Julius Caesar will join them—to be dragged down, occasionally, for use as a "stock piece" when assorted, nondescript statuary is needed to "fill out" a set.

The inevitable reflection is that art, Longfellow to the contrary, is not long—in Hollywood.

Now the German "Brown Shirts" have turned stylish and are wearing brown tuxedos. They'll soon be having a brown taste in their mouths.

Million Men Cross Bridge

Across an arched city of Asia Minor, was the scene of the greatest military disaster of early history. It was there that Xerxes, ruler of Persia, in 480 B. C., throwing a bridge of boats across the Hellespont, led his army of a million men across the strait to Greece. Xerxes was prepared to crush his army once when waves carried his bridge apart, during a night storm. Angered, the night's water ran red with blood, and the Persians, after their boats were cast into the waves, then a second and stronger bridge was erected and was pushed on the water in a great effort. When all was ready, the army started on the march. For a week, soldiers from 45 nations, all attired in their own national costumes, marched in procession across the bridge as Xerxes sat on a throne and watched. It is estimated that his army numbered a million warriors.

Eighteenth Century Migration

In the latter decades of the eighteenth century migration from the east to Ohio was progressing at such rate that many persons of New England feared that their country would be drained of the best brains, blood and sinew in America, relates the Cleveland Plain Dealer. To stop this flow many tales were told of the terrible life one must suffer in this new country. One caricature, published in a Boston newspaper of this period, presented a well-dressed gentleman on a large horse, with the sentence, "I am going to Ohio," while in the opposite direction was headed a wretched specimen of humanity in rags, on a thin, wretched beast, with the words, "I've been to Ohio."
